President, High School student on accelerated program studying computer engineering. Elizabeth Zuniga, President of ASCSN, Majoring in secondary education.

UNR: once a month
WNC: Once a week
TMCC: Once a month

Chair Espinoza describes the purpose of NSA and what members do to work together to pass certain items.
Chancellor Reilly informs NSA that he would be willing to inform the committee about agenda items.

Chancellor Reilly introduces himself.
Renee Davis requests that Chancellor Reilly describe his goals:
He has plans to have strategic planning set by December with the Board of Regents. By January, having a clearly articulated plan for 3-5 years in the future.
24% of the NV population from 18-24 is in higher education, including 2 year college whereas the national average is close to 50%. We should make room for individuals who are qualified and interested. We need to reimagine and be more proactive about higher education in order to include more individuals in degree completion and solving problems.

We should take advantage of the Governor’s fondness of higher education and capitalize on that sentiment;

Chair Espinoza asks how students can be involved in creating budget strategies to encourage NSHE funding on State level. Chancellor Reilly explains that Student Body Presidents are more engaged and more informed. General students at NSHE institutions can weigh-in what is more important in higher ed.
Where do students think that the priorities should be? Should money go into public safety or scholarships?

Chancellor Reilly encourages administration to provide information to student leaders in terms they can understand and be able to effectively explain to other students.

Chancellor Reilly describes policy at the Morrison Institute to encourage researchers to explain information in a plain-spoken and relevant manner. “If you can’t explain it in a couple pages, nobody will read it.”

Sandesh Kannan agrees with Chancellor Reilly’s philosophy.

Chair Espinoza inquires about getting meetings with Chancellor Reilly and other student leaders. He requests that they schedule them on a case-by-case basis.

Chancellor Reilly leaves discussion and thanks the NSA for allowing him to come speak.
