3. DISCUSSION WITH BOARD OFFICERS AND CHANCELLOR

Jackson thanks the regents for all the help with providing her information and slides in order to understand the material that is talked about a lot more. She also brings the housing and food insecurity resolution into the conversation and states that her vision is to see all institutions work together on this survey to students.

Holderread informs Jackson that there is a group at TMCC that would be interested in this topic and can help get Jackson in contact with them.
Chair Roys reports that there will be changes made to the NSA constitution in order to get more student involvement in committee made by the Board of Regents. He asks the regents if they have an advice on how to better this process or if they know other ways to start student involvement now.

Dean Gould suggests that something that would help would be a lot more communication with the committee chairs so that if students want to be on that committee they will get information.

Jackson asks if there are any possibilities to have non-voting members on standing committees.

Vice Chair Geddes suggests that he will get back to the NSA soon with an answer on this.

Opfer suggest to the regents that the “on boarding” information happens earlier in the year so that incoming Student Government Presidents can have a better hold on how the Board of Regents system works.

Vice Chair Geddes agrees and says that this informational session will take place again in June.

Suciu brings into light some problems that WNC has been having with Title 9.

Vice Chair Geddes advices Suciu to have a discussion with the WNC President on this topic in order to figure out an action plan on how to better this situation.

Carissa Bradley asks of how institutions response to Title 9 will be taken on by the Board of Regents later on and how the process of getting some concerns fixed will look like.

Vice Chair Geddes states that the Title 9 committee is required to solicit a period in which they can hear from all institutions and their concerns with Title 9. He says that normally once they receive feedback they go back and do some revisions before the final proposition is presented to the board.

Carissa Bradley asks how long an institution will have to adopt this new policy once it is completely approves. She is worried as to how international student will be effected if it were to pass as it is right now because she feels like these students should also be under Title 9.

Vice Chair Geddes reports that it depends on certain institutions and circumstances.
